APW COLUMNIST ON SONG

Posted by Editor On September - 21 - 2011

By John GollEDGE

Displaying skills that are both versatile and adaptable, Australian Poker Weekly columnist Danielle Adams-Benham has once again ventured into the international music scene. Earlier this year APW reported that Adams-Benham had co-written I'm All In – with country rock artist Jimmie Lee – a song which is now a perennial favourite on the iPods of many poker players. The single sold well throughout the international poker scene.

Known as the Jersey Outlaw, Lee has just launched another extra special poker song, co-written by our own Hot Aussie Chick. Hit the River Running is set to make its mark into the entertainment industry as part of Lee's soon to be released album Kid Vegas. Danielle has put much of her own persona into the songwriting process, once again in partnership with Jimmie Lee.

The Jersey Outlaw and Danielle were hoping to generate more of the same excitement within the poker community when Hit the River Running was released on iTunes and CD Baby. The pair's hopes have become reality! The song is merely one week old and has already been publicised globally, and with its sales beginning to skyrocket.

Hit the River Running and I'm All In both appear on Jimmie Lee's forthcoming album Kid Vegas due for release soon. The album features both these hit songs together with an array of others – also co-written by our very own Hot Topics columnist – which have yet to be released as singles.

Hit the River Running features a driving rock beat complemented by Jimmie's killer vocals. It perfectly captures the emotions poker players experience as they sweat out the river card turnover that could seal their fate! Jimmie Lee has already received widespread critical acclaim for I'm All In and now Hit the River Running is also being aired on poker and mainstream stations all over the globe.

Lee is set to make a series of select guest appearances at celebrity poker tournaments throughout the year, playing songs from his new Kid Vegas album. These live shows feature live performances from Jimmie and The Bandito Girls, and are always a big hit with the poker players.
